

December 01, 2006

The Clutter Diet Blog

Is your house a mess? Are your closets overflowing with clutter? Maybe you need to go on a diet. A clutter diet! That's the prescription for relief from Lorrie Marrero, who just launched her Clutter Diet site, which offers mess-management advice, training, and products. Her program is modeled on successful diet regimens, and a visit to her companion blog -- The Clutter Diet Blog -- will offer a handy introduction to all the program's elements, as well as tips focused on each household area: bed & bath, closets, computers & gadgets, garages (!), and others. Don't miss the very timely topic on avoiding holiday clutter, where you'll learn great mess-avoidance techniques like how to set up a gift station. We have to admit, Lorrie's mantra of "living an organized lifestyle to prevent clutter before it happens" sounds like music to our ears.

Technorati Tags: organization, productivity

Email this • Add to del.icio.us • Subscribe to this feed

